SONS OF NORWAY BERNT BALCHEN LODGE – PRESIDENT’S MESSAGE

Norwegians in Alaska, and a Question

According to the U.S. Census Americans of Norwegian ancestry make up 6.5% of the current population of Alaska. In fact, they constitute the fourth largest ancestry group in Alaska. And Norwegians have been coming to Alaska for decades. In fact, in the late nineteenth century “New Norway” was a nick-name used by folks who were promoting Alaska among Norwegians.

One group of early arrivals were the Norwegian Sami who were brought to Alaska by Sheldon Jackson to teach the Inupiat the ways of reindeer herding. The first group came in 1894 and were followed by dozens more in 1898. With them came an assortment of Norwegian administrators, doctors, teachers, and pastors to help organize the project and minister to the needs of the Sami. One of the more famous and adventurous Lutheran pastors that accompanied the Sami was T.T. Brevig; the village of Brevig Mission on the Seward Peninsula was named after him.

Many of the Sami also married in among the Alaska Natives with whom they lived. The descendants of those early unions are still in Alaska today. Many, such as Margie Brown, former President and CEO of Cook Inlet Native Corporation, have made major contributions to today’s Alaska. However, the Sami were not the only Norwegians who married in the early days of Alaska; young Norwegian sailors and fisherman founded numerous families with their Alaska Native spouses from Southeast Alaska to the Aleutians. Sven Haakonson, former Director of the Alutiig Museum in Kodiak, a MacArthur Scholar, and now a noted Professor of Anthropology and Curator at the University of Washington is from one such family. One of his ancestors was a Norwegian sailor named Christiansen who found a pretty Alutiig girl at a dance in Old Harbor in the 1930s. Christiansen’s best friend, a Danish sailor named Haakonson, also found a girl he liked at the same dance. Both married those pretty girls and ended up becoming Sven’s “bestefars”.

The Gold Rush became a magnet for Norwegians in search of both adventure and wealth. Most did not find wealth, but many found adventure. One of the most famous of the Gold Rush Norwegians was Leonhard Seppala who came to Nome from Northern Norway at the turn of the twentieth century. He soon found he had both a knack and love for dog mushing and hauled freight from Nome to the wide-scattered mines of the Seward Peninsula. He first gained fame for winning the grueling 408-mile All Alaska Sweepstakes Race and then going on to win the Ruby Derby. But his most enduring claim to fame came in 1925 when he successfully took on the most dangerous leg of the serum dog-sled-run to Nome across perilous sea ice and in the midst of a forbidding blizzard. His feat saved the people of Nome from a raging diphtheria epidemic and the serum run is celebrated today in the running of the Iditarod Trail Dog Sled Race.

And if I am talking about early Norwegian Alaskans I can’t leave out Petersburg, Alaska. It was founded by Peter Buschman, a Norwegian immigrant, who built a cannery, sawmill, and dock after scouting out a great location on Mitkof Island in 1897.

His cannery and dock soon became a magnet for Norwegians in the fishing industry and a full, flourishing town was incorporated by 1910. Because the majority of its inhabitants are of Norwegian descent, Petersburg is known by the nickname of “Little Norway”.

Calling all Alaskan Norwegians!

It is no accident that Petersburg proudly boasts the largest the Sons of Norway lodge in Alaska with nearly 400 adult members in a town of only 3,100 people; and it is no accident that their lodge is the oldest in Alaska dating back to 1911 and their Sons of Norway Hall which dates to 1912 is on the National Register of Historic Places.

But Petersburg's lodge numbers raise a question. If a town of some 3,000 people can support a lodge with 400 active members why can't we? Bernt Balchen Lodge is located in Alaska's biggest city and yet we hover at just over 300 members. Two fifths of Alaskans live in Anchorage. So where are all the Norwegians hiding? To judge from the census numbers there should be at least 19,000 people of Norwegian ancestry in Anchorage not to mention thousands of folks of Swedish, Danish, and Finnish descent who we would also gladly like to welcome as potential members. Plus, remember we accept everyone who is simply just interested in Norwegian and Nordic heritage and culture. We have a big tent to serve the needs of all kinds of people with an interest in the Nordic countries and their traditions.

Eivend Heiberg, CEO of Sons of Norway International, has set a goal of recruiting 3500 new members into Sons of Norway by 2020. It would be great if we could help meet that goal. Since we have a good number of Scandinavians swimming just below the surface in Anchorage one would think we could devise a way to catch them. By the way, I must admit I am a terrible fisherman. I am "Alaska's Number One Conservation Fisherman"; on my own I catch nothing. However, I have found out that when I go on a fishing charter and pay attention to what the captain says I usually limit out. If that is a lesson, perhaps we need some good "captains" who know how deep to set the hooks and what bait works best to catch a batch of Norwegian Americans or Scandinavian Americans. And I don't mean catch and release. We want to have them stay on as happy and content long-term members of Bernt Balchen Lodge.

I ask all of you to put your oars in the water and become fisher men and women for Sons of Norway. If you know of someone who might be interested in things Scandinavian tell them about Sons of Norway and the benefits of membership. If you have ideas about how to better recruit and keep new members share them with me or other lodge officers. Come to the next Board/Membership meeting on April 13th and tell us your thoughts. We would like to see you; too often we have only a scattering of members in attendance. It is your lodge and the Board/Membership meeting gives you an opportunity to participate in important lodge business. You get to vote by "the sign", where else can you do that? Nowhere! So, see you there.

*Fraternally yours,
Terje "Ted" Birkedal*

SPRING BREAK-UP MUSICAL FUN BY LODGE TALENT

Wood Carving at Viking Hall

Thank you to Cindy McDowell and all the other folks who gave their time and expertise at the Wood Carving Seminar!

There is always an amazing lunch served, and as you can see by the photos, this is a popular and well attended event. Don't miss the next one, coming in October.

“Meet the World” a Success in 2017

Sons of Norway Bernt Balchen Lodge has been participating in Bridge Builders of Anchorage “Meet the World” for many years now. “Meet the World”, is an official “Fur Rondy” event which showcases and celebrates the different cultures that make Anchorage one of the most vibrant and diverse cities in the United States. This year “Meet the World” was held at the Dena’ina Center rather than at the Anchorage Museum because the museum is still under renovation.

We had a centrally located table we were able to reach and talk to hundreds of visitors throughout the day. We had great assistance from the Royal Norwegian Embassy and Sons of Norway International with some of the handouts and displays. Our enthusiastic greeting team was led by Linda Bustamante and Melinda Hansen and also included Karen Ruud, Gayle Mathiesen, Charlene Howe, Steinar Hansen, Merlin Hamre, and myself. As President I wish to thank the team for a job well done. This year, we had a beautiful and informative table thanks to Linda and Melinda – a real eye grabber.

In addition, our Norwegian theme was echoed by Pia Meyer and Anne McCormick who offered a variety of exciting Nordic items for sale in an eye-catching display in the lobby just outside the main hall.

Over the years, participating in “Meet the World” has allowed us to inform thousands of attendees, both adults and children, about both the wonders of Norway and the value of Sons of Norway.

2nd Annual Spring Silent Auction

Saturday, April 8th

Proceeds go to Convention Delegate Fund

Every other year delegates from our lodge attend the Sons of Norway district and international conventions. Each delegate pays their own travel, lodging and registration expenses. In an effort to assist with a portion of these costs, the proceeds from the Silent Auction will be set aside in a special convention delegate fund.

King Harald Medallion will be available for bidding.

This year’s Silent Auction will be held from 5 p.m. to 7:30 p.m. during the Norwegian Fish Dinner on Saturday, April 8.

Wood crafted items will again be featured and we hope to have a fine selection of Scandinavian/Nordic items as well.

Please consider donating any gently used Scandinavian/Nordic items for the auction. Bring your donations to Viking Hall (open 9:00 am-1:00 pm, Tuesday-Friday) or call Cynthia at 562-2794 for more information or to arrange a drop-off time outside of office hours.

Thank You in advance for your support!

World Happiness Report

Norway is #1!

After ranking fourth for the last two years, Norway jumped three spots and displaced three-time winner Denmark to take the title of "world's happiest country" for the first time.

#Growingto2020

Sons of Norway is kicking off a member recruitment campaign and our lodge is excited to take up the challenge.

We've been asked to increase our membership by 10% or 33 new members - we can do this!

Being a part of the Bernt Balchen Lodge provides our members numerous opportunities to learn about Norway and experience the culture of a country that many consider one of the most beautiful places on earth! Please give some thought to who you know that might be interested in joining our lodge and invite them to an event.

We have membership brochures at the lodge or they can join online at www.sonsofnorway.com And lodge officers are always available to talk about the benefits of membership.

Your vision. Your creativity. Your venue.

Memories are shared here ~

Tradition Tuesday

Tradition Tuesday is an opportunity to learn about the diverse cultures that make Anchorage unique.

Tradition Tuesday is part of "Welcoming Anchorage" and takes place in the Loussac Library in the Innovation Lab (4th floor).

Our lodge will be presenting on April 25, from 6:00 - 7:30 pm. Some of our members with musical talent have volunteered to participate.

We will have a table to display information and of course, our wonderful Norwegian desserts to share.

This is a great opportunity to share Norwegian culture and our history in our community.
